Speculations on the Liquor Law.

88ATISFACTION OF THE LIQUOR DEALERS—THE GROCERS—THE SUNDAY CLAUSE—THE GERMANS OPPOSED TO IT—PREPARATIONS FOR A GRAND DEMONSTRATION IN OFFOSITION TO THE SUNDAY LAW—WHAT THE PUBLIC SAYS, ETC.

The Metropolitan Excise law continues to be a subject unriety and uneasiness is manifested among a certain class of dealers, who will be excluded by the Board from the benefits of a license, and great efforts have been made to induce the Commissioners of the Board of Excise to recede from their decision to exclude grocers, but in vain. They now look to the Liquor Dealers' type for protection, and it appears that this body they have been advised to the their business as usual—that is, to sell their without a license, if they cannot obtain one spane without a license, if they cannot obtain onemill further notice. It was first intended to dispute the constitutionality of the new law; but the Lequer Dealers' Associations, by the advice of their counsellors, have come to the conclusion that nothing can be done to avert the operation of the law in question, and that they will have to submit to it. In fact, the general impression is that there is nothing to shake the constitutionality of the new Excise law, said law not being prohibitory, but simply being a law of regulation. It is true that there are some lawyers who have questioned the constitutionality of several of the provisions of the law, on the sround that it confers arbitrary powers on the police, and making each and every policeman a judicial and executive officer; but as each of the counsel of the German Protective Association of Retailers and of the New York Liquor Dealers' Society have submitted to their associations a legal opinion confirming the constitutionality of the various provisions of the bill (which for prudential reasons they decline to make public), there is no doubt in the minds of those directly interested that the constitutionality of the law cannot be shaken, and they are satisfied that they have to take out their licenses and to comply with the provisions of the law. They have resolved to await the result of its operations. Proprietors of first class establishments in the majority appear to be fully satisfied with the new law. They are willing to close their places on Sundays, and calculate that the trade will concentrate in the large places, while the minor drinking places will have to be discontinued because they cannot afford to pay the license; but it is considered decidedly wrong on the part of the Board of Excise to fix a lower rate for a certain class of retailers. Many of the minor lager beer retailers and others retailing harmless beverages the large sum of one hundred dollars, and it is argued that such could not have been the intention of the Legislature, as the lowest rate for a license was set down at thirty dollars.
